N.B. Most of these walks involve steep ascents and rugged terrain

Moel Faban

Sunday 22nd July 2018 10:00am
 Explore the prehistoric archaeology of the beautifully situated Moel Faban in Dyffryn Ogwen. We'll discuss the further development of the surrounding landscape, taking into account later industrial settlement and the quarries.
Distance: 6.5km, 3 hours
Walk leader: Andrew Davidson, Gwynedd Archaeological Trust

Porth Penrhyn

Sunday 2nd September 2018 10:00am
 We'll be looking at the archaeology of Porth Penrhyn (Bangor), viewing medieval fishing weirs and visiting the remains of a 19th Century bath house.
Distance: 4.2 km, 2.5 hours
Walk leaders: Andrew Davidson & Dave Hopewell
Gwynedd Archaeological Trust

Bangor

Sunday 23rd September 2018
(Also part of Open Doors 2018) 10:00am
 Visit our offices before embarking on a tour of Bangor, taking us past the site of the friary to Hirael, up the High Street to the Cathedral and back along Garth Road.
Distance: 5km, 2.5 hours
Walk leaders: Andrew Davidson & Rob Evans
Gwynedd Archaeological Trust

Porthaethwy (Menai Bridge)

Sunday 4th November 2018 10:30am, 2:30pm
 A visit to the First World War memorial designed by local architect and amateur archaeologist Harold Hughes, situated at St. Tysilio Church on Church Island. Part of our project recording First World War memorialisation.
Distance: 4km, 2 hours
Walk leader: Rob Evans, Gwynedd Archaeological Trust

Dolgellau

Sunday 24th February 2019 10:00am
 Come and marvel at Dolgellau's irregular street pattern and vernacular architecture. We'll also visit the church before considering the influence of Sir Robert Vaughan of Nannau on the development of the town.
Distance: 5 km, 2.5 hours
Walk leaders: Andrew Davidson & Rob Evans
Gwynedd Archaeological Trust

Tre'r Ceiri

Sunday 24th March 2019 10:00am
 A visit to Tre'r Ceiri (Pen Llŷn), one of Britain's best preserved Iron Age hill forts. Whilst there enjoy some of North Wales' finest views.
Distance: 5.5km, 3 hours
Walk leader: Dave Hopewell
